'HAZING' INVESTIGATION ORDERED AT ANNAPOLIS

Resolution in House Followed by Action by Secretary of the Navy Daniels.

Representative Clyde Kelly of Pennsylvania introduced a resolution in the House yesterday calling upon the Secretary of the Navy for information regarding "hazing" at the Naval Academy, the number of resignations by midshipmen and the reasons for such resignations. At the same time he directed attention of the House to newspaper reports of suicide and attempted suicide on account of "mental strain and torture" which he attributed to "intolerable indignities."

Representative Kelly suggested that the son of Secretary Daniels had resigned during the year, and thought that "it may be possible he suffered from the 'hazing' which is reported to be carried to barbarous extremes."

Discussing his personal experience in appointing youths to Annapolis, Mr. Kelly said:

Tells of Hazing.
"I received a letter written by a midshipman at the Naval Academy today. He gave a statement of the cruel and heartless hazing to which he had been subjected. His letter, disconnected and broken, gave evidence of the mental strain and torture under which he suffered."
"Only a few months ago that boy was filled with intense pride and enthusiasm over successfully passing the entrance examination for Annapolis. He had planned for years to enter upon a naval career, and all his dreams seemed realized."

"There has been a revulsion of feeling, which, to my mind, could only come through the suffering of intolerable indignities."
"I have a vacancy now at the Naval Academy because of one resignation of the lad I had named. He, too, started out with enthusiastic determination to spend his life in the nation's service on the high seas. In six months his enthusiasm had given way to dislike, his fervor to complete disgust."

Investigation Ordered.
Secretary Daniels has ordered an investigation of alleged "hazing" at the Naval Academy. He would have no hesitancy," said he, "in expelling a hundred midshipmen from the academy if I found they had been implicated in hazing of any description. Students and officers at Annapolis know President Wilson and my own views on the subject. I do not believe that there has been any hazing at the Naval Academy, but I will do everything possible to get the real facts in the case."

RULES AS TO UNIFORMS OF RESERVE OFFICERS

Secretary of War Prescribes When and How They May Be Worn.

The Secretary of War has decided that reserve officers not on active duty may wear the uniform of their corps and rank on occasions of military ceremony, on public holidays, such as Decoration day, etc., and when engaged in the military instruction of or when responsible for the military discipline of a cadet corps at an educational institution. The proper collar insignia—"U. S." with superimposed "R" in gilt—must then be worn.

The act of Congress, approved February 28, 1919, provides that any person who served in the United States Army during the present war may wear the uniform after discharge, provided that it shall include some distinguishing mark, to be prescribed by the Secretary of War. The red chevron has been so prescribed.

Reserve officers wearing the uniform under that provision must wear the uniform of the corps, rank or grade, enlisted or commissioned, that they were authorized to wear at the date of their discharge. The prescribed red chevron must then be worn and the collar insignia should not have the superimposed "R."

The Secretary of War also directs that officers of the aviation section, Reserve Corps, shall wear the insignia of the air service, and not that of the Signal Corps.

WAR DEPARTMENT TO AID SERVICE MEN TO JOBS

Will Keep Up Work of United States Employment Service
Terminating Tomorrow.

"No service man will be considered demobilized until a job has been found for him."
That statement is authorized by the office of the assistant to the Secretary of War as a result of the shutting down of the United States employment service tomorrow because of lack of funds. An added task now confronts the War Department in its attempt to find jobs for the thousands of honorably discharged service men into civil life. The 2,500 bureaus for soldiers and sailors throughout the United States will be continued, with the assistance of welfare associations and civilian volunteers.

Secretary Baker, in making the agencies which have contributed toward putting soldiers and sailors back at work, has issued a request that they keep up their work until the last service man has been re-employed.
